old Mr Radley said no Radley then it was assumed that word of God as his only law, and we believed her, because Mr Radley's posture was ramrod straight.

He never spoke to us. When he passed we would look at the ground and say, 'Good morning, sir,' and he would cough in reply. Mr Radley's elder son lived in Pensacola; he came home at Christmas, and he was one of the few persons we ever saw enter or leave the place. From the day Mr Radley took Arthur home, people said the house died.
But there came a day when Atticus told us he'd wear us out if we made any noise in the yard and commissioned Calpurnia to serve in his absence if she heard a sound out of us. Mr Radley was killing
